

WALK 2 The Wonders of Birkenhead

Birkenhead has some fascinating historical attractions and if you haven't yet discovered them you may be pleasantly surprised. This walk visits ten of them. Hamilton Square including the former Town Hall, Birkenhead Priory, Woodside Ferry, the new U-Boat Story, the Tramway, Egerton Bridge, the Transport Museum, Pacific Road Arts Centre, the Mersey Tunnel Ventilation Shaft and Shore Road Pumping Station in one afternoon!

Start: Hamilton Square, Birkenhead.

Distance: About 2 miles. 2 - 6 hours depending on which attractions are visited.

Parking: There are numerous car parks in the area, and rates vary.

Buses and Trains: Regular services to and from Woodside Bus Terminus. Hamilton Square Railway Station has regular services from all adjacent areas.

① Make your way to the largest building in Hamilton Square, the former Town Hall, where you will also see the War Memorial for those who have given their lives. Hamilton Square dates from 1826 and has the most Grade 1 listed buildings in one place in England, except for Trafalgar Square in London. The monument in the centre was modelled on the Eleanor Cross, which was first built by King Edward I who twice visited Birkenhead Priory. The statue is of John Laird who was the first MP for Birkenhead and his grave can be seen at the Priory later. The former Town Hall was built in 1887, of sandstone taken from Storeton Quarry. See Walk 1, South East Walk Wirral leaflet.

③a Woodside Ferry Terminal and the new U-Boat Story.

⑥ From Egerton Bridge walk across Canning Street and across to Taylor Street where the Transport Museum is housed. Here you are able to view the old cars, buses, trams, motorbikes and military vehicles.

⑨ To return to Hamilton Square turn right out of the Pumping Station, cross over the end of Canning Street and round to Hamilton Square.

This walk is best followed at weekends, bank holidays and local school holidays as several of the attractions have restricted opening times. Check their respective websites via www.visitwirral.com.
